SAN FRANCISCO PEAKS

Along the Santa Fe Near Flagstaff, Arizona.

Early in the 17th century the Franciscans who established a mission at Oraibi in the Hopi Indian Reservation gave the name of San Francisco to these peaks to honor St. Francis of Assisi, the founder of their Order. However, there are three separate peaks in this group and each bears the name of a famous western pioneer. Humphreys Peak (12,611 Alt.) was named to honor Andrew Atkinson Humphreys, surveyor of one of the first railroads to the Pacific. Agassiz Peak (12,340 Alt.) was named for Jean Louis Rodolphe Agassiz, noted geologist. Fremont Peak (11,940 Alt.) was named for John Charles Fremont, early governor of the Arizona territory.

These peaks form the highest points in Arizona and on a clear day, Utah, California and Nevada are visible from their crests.

San Francisco Peaks reproduced on the cover of this menu is from a painting by Louis Akin.
